

Investigated Advertisements Indorsed by The Tribune. Fee Charged for investigation Arranged in Advance.

Under this classification the man or woman of character and ability wanting pleyment; the responsible employer wanting reliable and efficient help; the man or firm desiring capital for their business, or those wishing to dispose of anything that will stand the fullest investigation, may go before the readers of The Tribune th their statements indorsed by this paper, rE PUBLISH an advertisement of an "inventive and efficiency engineer" this morning.

We have repeatedly stated that this classification is the logical place for unusual workers seeking unusual employment to market their ability. Our investigation of this advertiser stamps him as both capable and unusual.

Imagine a mind with a bent to turn mechanical experience and inventiveness into practical application in improving the efficiency of machinery and inventions.

"He is a man of remarkable ingenuity and inventive abilwrites a former employer. "He has also done a great deal of development work.

Another reference states: "The success of the apparatus has been due very largely to a great many of Mr. -personal ideas.

Amazingly wonderful are the camera-like impressions unconsciously registered by the human brain to be developed into a mental picture when the conscious mind calls for the print and practically applied by a practical inventor when the need arises.

This advertiser feels that many manufacturers who would like to improve the efficiency of their machinery and many inventors with an embryo idea who lack the knowledge to work it out will be glad to know of a practical expert whose ability to do such things is indorsed by The Tribune.

It is with conscious pride we strive to impress on readers the high-grade workers attracted to this classification. Is not the pride pardonable when we can offer Tribune readers the services of such men after an investigation enables us to indorse them?

Positions are to be obtained through advertising in these columns if men and women can qualify according to the standards set up by The Tribune for "The Tribunal."
